IFY - Business

Similar to A-Levels, students enrolled in the International Foundation Year program at NCUK study three academic subjects from a list of courses, depending on the specific degree they intend to pursue at the university. The available subjects include:

- Mathematics for Business
- Business Studies
- Economics

Additionally, students will study one of the English for Academic Purposes module, providing them with the necessary academic English language skills required for university-level studies.

In the NCUK International Foundation Year, the English for Academic Purposes module is a crucial component designed to provide essential preparation for university-level studies. Students have different options based on their English language proficiency and background:

English for Academic Purposes for non-native speakers of English:

- Aimed at students who are non-native speakers of English, this module helps enhance their academic English language skills for successful university study.

English for Academic Purposes for Proficient Users:

- Designed for students who have previously studied in English but require an English language qualification for visa purposes. This module ensures that students maintain a high level of English proficiency.

Research and Communications Skills:

- Tailored for students who already possess an English language qualification such as IELTS. This module focuses on refining research and communication skills necessary for academic success at the university level.

Completing the International Foundation Year opens doors for students to progress into over 9,000 degree subjects at globally recognized and top-ranked universities.
